A little word trivia: At its core (no pun intended), “hello” means “I acknowledge your presence and I come in peace.” So, hello :) When telephones were first popularized, Alexander Graham Bell wanted people to answer phone calls with the nautical term “Ahoy.” In 1877, Thomas Edison suggested using “hello” instead, noting it carried loudly over long distances. Edison’s greeting quickly became the standard after it was published in early telephone exchange directories. Saying hello can also boost moods, create social connections, spread positivity and reduce feelings of isolation.

Hello!

I have been slacking in the Newsletter department, my apologies! We have had so much going on that it slipped thru the cracks. New products, new website-A LOT happening here at KSP!

We are always excited to get out of the office and come see all of you! We attended SHDA-Security Hardware Distributors Association in beautiful NC a few weeks ago and a great time was had by all! The vibe was a positive one regardless of who you spoke with, always fun meeting with everyone.
